ABOUT NUSRL

The National University of Study and Research in Law (NUSRL), Ranchi, established in 2010, as the 14th National Law University of India is a premier law university of the state of Jharkhand dedicated to legal research and education. The University has been recognized by University Grants Commission (UGC) in September 2011 u/s 22, u/s 12B in the year 2018 of the UGC Act of 1956 and Bar Council of India (BCI).

ABOUT CLAP

Center for Legal Aid Programme (CLAP), NUSRL is a student and faculty-run society with an aim to spread legal awareness and give real-time effective legal aid to the people belonging to marginalized sections of our society. Over the years CLAP has run various programmes and started social empowerment initiatives in order to ensure the progress and upliftment of the people. The events have turned out to be a great success. CLAP along with its volunteers, members and supporting collaborators have managed to create an impact within a short period of time.

ABOUT PRO BONO CLUB, NUSRL

Pro Bono Club, NUSRL which was established in April 2022 under the Nyaya Bandhu (Pro Bono Legal Services) programme of the Department of Justice, Government of India with the primary objective of extending legal aid to the marginalized sections by improving the efficiency and quality of Pro Bono Legal Services and providing assistance to pro bono advocates through competent law students of NUSRL, Ranchi. They follow the overarching goal of fostering the positive development of society with a strong socio-legal perspective. The Pro Bono Club team promotes legal activism and holds the view that law and society are intertwined. Because of their close ties, law and society must both be changed in equal measure if we are to bring about the desired change in the world.

ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Article 39A of the Constitution of India places responsibility on the Indian State for securing justice to all and providing legal remedies for poor and marginalized sections who cannot afford it on their own. The National Legal Services Authority Act was enacted in 1987 to expand the concept of legal aid. However, it is unfortunate that despite the constitutional and statutory recognition of legal aid as a right of the citizens and an obligation of the state, it has not been formalized and institutionalized effectively. Establishing a resilient legal aid mechanism can be achieved by involving students in the process and institutionalizing their participation.

Higher educational institutes play a pivotal role in promoting 'Access to Justice' and legal aid by contributing to the development of a knowledgeable and skilled legal community that is committed to serving the underprivileged sections of society. Sadly, law schools in India exhibit a detachment from social realities, as evidenced by a UNDP study titled "Access to Justice Project on Study of the Law School-Based Legal Service Clinics." The study reveals that law colleges have either faltered or allocated insufficient attention to the promotion and dissemination of information regarding legal aid services within their institutions.

The seminar aims to delve into the multifaceted role of Higher educational institutions in India in advancing 'Access to Justice' by shaping the mindset of future legal professionals, facilitating practical experience, conducting research, and actively engaging with communities in need. The integration of legal aid principles into the core curriculum and extracurricular activities ensures that graduates are not only knowledgeable in law but also committed to serving the underserved. The seminar will serve as a platform for insightful discussions and exchange of ideas among academicians, scholars, legal experts, educators and students passionate about fostering a culture of legal awareness and ensuring that justice is accessible to all members of society, irrespective of socio-economic background.
